Cattlemen Meet in Austin in Effort to Solve Brucellosis Problem

7th Year, No. 23 Fort Worth, Texas, June 9, 1983 Thirty-six Pages

Leaders in Breeding Cattle Industry Meet With Gov. White, Ag Commissioner Hightower to Eliminate Quarantine

The following reports were received from representatives of the cattlemen at the brucellosis meeting in Austin Tuesday afternoon. The meeting was concluded by The Weekly Livestock Reporter. The first statement was by Charles Dwyer, executive director of the Texas Longhorn Association.

The meeting of cattlemen, both dairy and beef, as well as the Texas Veterinary Medical Association is being held in Austin at this time. It is convened at 7:00. The meeting is chaired by Jim Brown, President of the Texas Brahman Association, and by Red McCombs, part owner of the Brink's Brangus Ranches as well as McCombs Texas Longhorns.

Cattlemen from all over Texas are here, the body has been addressed by several cattlemen. There have been four resolutions presented, that I don't have here with me at this time, however, the first of the resolutions are - Number 1, that the Brucellosis issue be placed on the docket for a special session of the legislature.

These are the major items in the resolutions. Governor White has sat through part of the speeches and has a copy of the resolutions in his hand. He has indicated, not promised, that there will be a special session of the legislature called. He has pledged his support to try to see that this bill does pass. He is meeting with a small group of Texas cattlemen this afternoon to try to work this situation out. He seems very concerned about it and seems very knowledgeable on the subject.

This report was from Wendell Schronk, executive vice president of the American Brahman Breeders Association.

As far as my personal viewpoints, we were just real happy to see the fact that the governor would give an audience to those from this meeting today. Whomever Jim Brown, Texas Brahman Association and Red McCombs would select to go over to the Governor's mansion to meet with him. The other observation that we would have is that we have seen more people here meeting under one roof representing not only the

STAMPEDE By Jerry Palen

"So, it wasn't a banner year report card was it. It hasn't been a red-letter year for farming, either."

FENCING IN TEXAS CATTLE

More than two million cattle shipped out of Texas each year would be fenced in if a proposed Federal brucellosis quarantine were enforced against Texas ranchers.

Fed Cattle Lower Monday, Hog Prices Also Sag At Markets

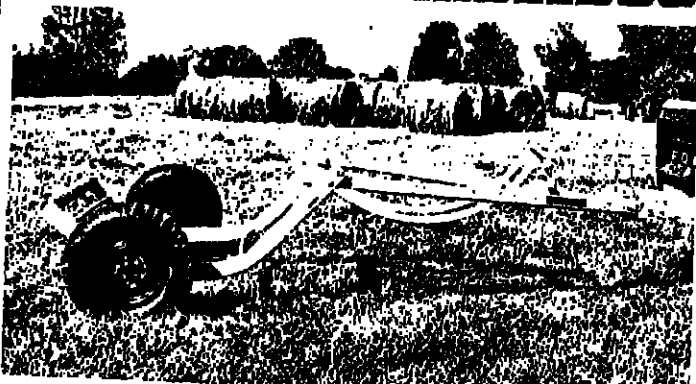

The downward spiral of prices on fed steers and heifers continued Monday although there were some glimmers of better prices in the early reports on the carcass trade. Monday's estimated cattle kill at 127,000 was 9,000 larger than the same day a year ago, and no comparison existed with the holiday kill of just 5,000 a week ago. Hogs moved sharply lower at most markets. Monday's estimated hog kill was 296,000 about 7,000 below last year. In the trade the heavier hogs were generally

Stuph & Thangs

curable disease in Congress.
Another good example of this greed for more tax dollars are the efforts that are now afoot, and which have been muddling around in Congress since the Reagan tax cuts of five, ten and ten percent over a three year span. Speaker Tip O'Neill showed his latest plan to snatch this money away from us the other day when he suggested that tax relief be limited to $700. His idea is to lay more of the tax on the upper brackets of income tax payers, but as we all well know the Big Taxers and Big Spenders in Congress are like the Arab's camel.
Durin' a bad sand storm this Arab felt sorry for his camel and let him stick his nose under his tent. The inevitable result was the animal kept pushin' until he had turned over the tent and Arab, Camel & All were unprotected.
Congress giveth and Congress taketh away. If you don't keep a sharp eye on 'em. This week the National Wool Growers joined others in protestin' th' proposed changes in Estate Taxes, sayin' that American Agriculture has had more than its share of low blows in recent years and surely this one is not needed, nor necessary.

Ever thine.
The Editor.
P.S.; Uncle Dunk says th' way Gov. Mark White handles that meeting in Austin of th' cattlemen protestin' th' failure of th' Brucellosis program legislation offers White a great opportunity to come outta this mess a knight in shining armor. White can prevent a fruitless yelling match and show great responsibility if he tells those cowmen he will indeed call a special session to head off that quarantine and better still set th' date today (Tuesday). When all those other states are itchin' to bar Texas cattle for their own selfish interests, th' seriousness of this matter can not be exaggerated. — Thassell, Brothertel

SALE MANAGERS NOTE

Sam J. Mondello has been looking forward to this sale for a long time. Sam farms, does custom farm work, mechanics and spends a lot of time with the family. The items in this sale are owned by Mondello, a few he has bought, repaired and made ready for sale, a few that are new, but the majority are surplus to his needs on the farm and in the shop. We are pleased to work with Sam Mondello, with the exception of a half a dozen items, there will be no minimum bids, all of the equipment will be honest, represented. The sale will be held at the farm, the Mondellos will have the concession stand. This will be an excellent place to buy a beautiful sale site (under the trees around the home), and a varied selection of items. We look forward to seeing you at the Mondello Farm, Saturday, June 18, 1983, at 10:00 A.M.

Cattleman Gathers

beef cattle industry, but the dairy industry. And the motion to accept the resolution was unanimous. Not one vote against it. I think the cattle industry and the beef industry are very united today in what we've seen in here. What I personally think is going to happen, I think the governor's going to play a wait and see attitude. I do think he will act in the benefit of the beef cattle industry to avert the quarantine. I do personally think that he is not going to take any action until the injunction is heard in the courthouse, and at that point make his decision as to whether he is going to call a special session to put it on the agenda. But, I do have confidence that he is going to do something with the cattle industry of the state to protect us and not let this quarantine be put into effect at that point. At the point that the quarantine will definitely go into effect and be imposed, and all court action has ceased to stop it, I think the governor will make a positive move at that point to call the legislature into session.

Terry Morrow, executive vice president of the International Brangus Breeders Association reported:
Basically it's coming from all of the beef industry, the dairy industry, the shows, anybody interested in the beef cattle industry is interested in solving the problem. The problem is not unique to the state of Texas. I think the best comment was made by John Armstrong who said that he has worked in all areas of Brangus direction once, and then with APHIS and all the rest of them, and the last time he said he saw that many people, they were in a meeting to try to stop any kind of a quarantine program. And that there isn't any compromise as far as changing the bills any, because they have done everything to work out the best thing that they could work out, and this is it. It is not a compromise, it's just a matter of acceptance.

Well, the impressive part of today's meeting was the unified action of the beef industry, the dairy industry, livestock shows, the USDA and the Texas Animal Health Commission. The fact that everyone was here. Speakers from all segments of the industry, which does not include the purebred industry but also the dairy industry. Probably as good a speech that was made, was made by a small commercial person who had 80 cows and worked part time to support a growing ranch operation, and the fact that he as a young person started and fulfilled all the requirements of the purebred program and has a clear herd, and now is being jeopardized because of a few people. As one person said, 100% of the cattleman in the state need to comply with the rule, and not 99% indicating that 1% out there that doesn't want to follow the rules that were put down by all the United States, not just Texas. And the fact that Jeffers from Amarillo Auction Market was here stating that 70% of all of the females that go through the largest auction barn in the world go out of the state of Texas, so that very probably the commercial stocker market in the state of Texas would be lowered by 30 cents a pound.

Then John Armstrong stating that he has spent a major part of his life working on the purebred program, and that they have worked out the proper solution that there is no compromise in it and the fact that the state has to pass a bill and get on with their business because there is no alternative.

I think that this is the major part of it, and they are going to meet with Governor Mark White, and I think he understands now that his tie-in with several people can't keep him from supporting the 99% of the livestock industry in the state of Texas.

Gene Kuykendall, executive vice president of Beefmaster Breeders Universal reported:

Basically, I think what we've seen here today is the purebred industry as a whole, the leaders of the breeders of the state and national associations that are located in the state of Texas have finally joined together in a large turnout here that I think proved to be very successful. I think it indicated to the governor and his Department of Agriculture people that attended the meeting that we're serious and we want to try to get something accomplished that's going to keep a quarantine away from the state of Texas. Plus the fact that it's going to force the Senate and/or the Legislature into a special session to consider a bill on brucellosis, and I think we're going to get one passed that's going to be useful for the people of the state of Texas, all the cattle producers - dairy, etc. It was a great show of strength, and the governor seemed to be very receptive. I would say that it got some action because within an hour's time, a committee of people that were at the meeting are meeting with the governor. So, I think right now it looks terrific.

One of the things that I think everyone needs to be concerned about, all cattleman in the state of Texas, whether it be beef or dairy, that when this comes up in a special session, that every cattleman needs to call his representative and his senator and indicate to them the need to pass a bill so we can go ahead and operate like we should be doing.

I don't think we will have any problem getting this on the agenda for a special session, if and when one is called. I think the important thing is that we don't let the thing die now. All the people need to keep this in mind, and get on top of their representatives and senators in their areas so we can get something passed. Don't slack up just because we had a meeting and kind of got the ball rolling.

Supreme Court Holds

Windfall Tax Legal

The Supreme Court Monday held that the windfall profit tax on oil was Constitutional in a unanimous decision. A Wyoming judge had ruled the tax illegal because certain Alaska oil had been exempted from the federal windfall profit tax. The tax is a 12.5% tax on the difference between the market value of oil and the cost of production. It was enacted in 1962 to raise revenue for the federal government.
